

Epilogue of a pseudo-spiritual sacrificial pathology

The so-called Abrahamic monotheistic religiosity has since the 20th century been publicly demonstrated, conceptually, historically, and factually, as based on false foundations, first created and manipulated by local Jewish political powers from the 7th century BC, and remodeled during the following centuries by other political powers, Christian, then Muslim, to satisfy their respective expansionist ambitions, relying on artificial narratives.

Among the used artifices, an ambiguous sacrificial reference was determinative in the development of this religiosity, claimed virtuous for having broken with human sacrifices previously practiced for other gods, because its new unique god (Yahweh) was supposed to no longer want it among his believers. In this sense, the mythical founder Abraham (presumed born in Mesopotamia at the beginning of the 2nd millennium BC and died more than 2 centuries later) would have not exemplarily sacrificed his first son Isaac. And Christ, as a symbolic lamb, would have then incarnated by himself the ultimate sacrificed living being, definitively redeeming on this occasion all the alleged sins of his believers. But the sacrificial phenomenon had not disappeared from the Abrahamic religiosity, it had only mutated.

Faithful artificially convinced that they were serving a religion of love and high spirituality despite the opposite evidence, were consequently able to perpetrate, with zeal and fervor, countless murders, massacres, and genocides, which have killed many more "non-compliant" human Beings than the previous ritual sacrifices. This in the name and for the glory of their god, claimed unique and superior, but also for the misfortune notably of the many heretics, apostates, disbelievers, etc., exemplarily sacrificed with suffering and torture, century after century.

The sad epilogue of these violences, claimed from divine right but in fact anti-human, is that some Abrahamic believers of the 21st century have uncritically continued to follow the bad example of their ruling elites, not as believing as they appeared, and of which many had been secretly gone, for several centuries already, at the service of the antique god of hell Pluto (hence their designation as plutocrats). These deceptive pseudo-elites have finally decided, in front of the failure of their last attempt to take over world power, a collective mega-sacrifice of as many societies and human beings as possible. And this therefore in the name of a spirituality abusively confused with Abrahamic religiosity, of which some proselytists had even lost contact with reality to the point of claiming that if their plans had failed, it's because the dose of treatment of the populations hadn't sufficiently increased, with more sacrifices and more "appropriate" spirituality.

Yet, as a Latin translation of the Greek term pneumatikos (breathing, inspiration, breath), the term spirituality etymologically means an expression of the human mind, which mobilizes thought and abstraction in compensation for materiality, and for what is carnal and temporal in it. But these qualifying attributes do not necessarily link spirituality to Abrahamic religiosity, and should not be confused with it. Because the field of spirituality is much broader, more complex and richer than the one of this religiosity which is more destructive and deceptive than saving or redemptive, and what can in no way justify the deadly pathology of the pluto-theocratic imperialism that results from it.

The still sane part of Humanity must therefore correct this pathology as soon as possible, and vaccinate itself from it in the close future, notably by no longer seeking spirituality where there is none, or where only false ones can be found. Faith in a healthy, united, and lucid Humanity, and in its great common House, is a belief much more capable of truly ensuring its survival and its happiness, rather than a blind faith in a mentally ill, predatory, and self-destructive minority.
